Davis has been home to some of the nation's most distinguished artists, including Manuel Neri, Roy DeForest, Wayne Thiebaud, and Robert Arneson. As early as the 1950s, Davis was a hub for the California art scene. Continuing this legacy is the world-class Mondavi Performing Arts Center, the Davis Mural team, and top-notch art venues such as the Richard Nelson Gallery, the Pence Gallery, and John Natsoulas Center for the Arts, along with the Artery, one of the most enduring of artist cooperatives. Neighboring UC Davis also has one of the biggest art programs in the country.

The Davis Transmedia Art Walk is the first of its kind in the country. Following in the pioneering spirit of the Davis artists of the 1960s, Davis today has the participation of the community and the university to create one of the largest public art collections per square mile of any city in the nation.

The art on the map designated with an asterisk are the "transmedia" pieces, each one embedded with RFID computer chip with interactive features. With a free cellphone app, which you can readily download, you can scan the chip to discover a wealth of information about the art on view, including interviews with the artists and discussions of the meaning and relevance of each piece. You can even leave your own comments on the chip to complete the circle of discovery.

Savoring art can be rich, rewarding and even a transforming experience. Take your time and enjoy yourself!

GUIDED TOURS

FIRST IN THE NATION TRANSMEDIA ART WALK

The Davis Art Walk map is your guide to all of the magnificent, original art that Davis has to offer, all within an easy distance by foot or bicycle.

We offer artists and curator lead group tours of the only Transmedia art walk in the United States. We celebrate having one of the greatest mural teams in the world, "The Davis Mural Team" - and the "Transmedia Sculpture Group" - were the two groups to spearhead the art renaissance in the recent art history of Davis. Our guided tour ends with a private tour of the John Natsoulas Center for the Arts. This tour is available and lasts between one and two hours and can be arranged for groups of 8 or more. Tours are by appointment only. Smaller tours can be arranged on Saturday or Sunday mornings only, starting at 10am. Of course, you may use your cell phone and do the tours on your own.

Interact with the transmedia art. Touch the Near Field Communication (NFC) symbol on the interactive plaques with an RFID enabled cell phone to access links to videos about the artists and their work. You can download the free Microsoft Tag app from the Apple Store.
